

Algonac Community Schools Update

September, 2017

The 2017-2018 school year is officially underway. It was great to see the students back in the hallways and classrooms with the promise of a great school year in their eyes. The beginning of the year always serves as a reminder to me as to why I chose the great profession of education. There is something very rewarding about the opportunity to positively impact the lives of so many students.

These are challenging times in education for everyone. Students are being asked to academically achieve at a higher rate in order to prepare them for an ever changing world. Teachers are being asked to provide a quality education with fewer resources and more duties. Communities are being asked to be more supportive than ever for the good of the kids. Educational success truly is a group effort.

Fortunately for our students, they do have a solid support system in place. Our staff, although spread thin, is resilient and unwavering in their dedication to the students. This group has made sacrifices that very rarely get acknowledged. They deserve the praise and admiration of everyone associated with ACS.

The foundation is set for a successful school year..... great students, great staff and a great community!!! Let's all do our part to make this an exceptional year.
